THE NATIONAL ENVIRONMENT MANAGEMENT AUTHORITY

ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT ASSESSMENT STUDY REPORT FOR THE PROPOSED KALOBEYEI REFUGEE NEW CAMP SITE AT KAKUMA TURKANA WEST SUB-COUNTY

INVITATION OF PUBLIC COMMENTS

PURSUANT to regulation 21 of the Environmental Management and Co-ordination (Impact Assessment and Audit) Regulations, 2003, the National Environment Management Authority (NEMA) has received an Environmental Impact Assessment Study Report for the above proposed project.

The proponent, UNHCR Representation in Kenya, is proposing to develop the Kalobeyei new site which will involve construction works including; health center, schools, markets, shelters, roads and drainage systems; Provision of water and sanitation services (e.g. borehole construction and other forms of water supply), waste management, irrigated agriculture. The proposed project land is of 1500 hectares near Kalobeiyei village.

The following are the anticipated impacts and proposed mitigation measures:

Nature of Impact	Mitigation Measures
Soil harvesting for mud brick production	• Excavated earth should be held on locations of the site not susceptible to storm water runoff. The earth removed for external disposal should be deposited carefully on selected sites without the risk of being washed away during heavy rains and where such deposits will not compromise other land use activities in the areas affected. • Ensure that the soil harvesting areas are well fenced to prevent livestock and restrict access of unauthorized persons. • Exhaust and rehabilitate one material site before opening another section. • Exhausted quarries and borrow pits be isolated, protected and rehabilitated. • Hold top soils and vegetation matter near the quarries for backfilling. Top soil excavated from construction activities at the settlement site can be used to fill the earth harvesting areas. • Ensure reduced stagnation of water in abandoned soil harvesting sites and borrow pits.
Construction waste generation
Solid wastes	• Domestic solid waste to be stored in refuse bins temporarily before being taken away for proper disposal by NEMA licensed waste management firms. • Construction solid waste generated by activities that are unsuitable for use should be disposed in a landfill in an area that will be identified before commencement of construction activities. These areas should be covered with soil and the area later re-vegetated; and • Concrete, asphalt and other waste aggregate on site should be stored if there is a need for the material to be used as fill, provided that adjacent water bodies, including ground water supplies will not become impaired as a result of doing so.
Liquid wastes	• An area for the disposal of spilled or excess concrete should be identified near the mixing site. • Waste water from concrete batching and aggregate screening should be discharged into nearby sedimentation pools and clean water re-used. • A specific area for washing of cement trucks should be identified. • Waste water from maintenance and the repair of machinery should be passed through an oil interceptor until the oil falls down to acceptable levels after which it can be discharged to the environment. • All equipment must be fueled at properly designed fueling stations. Oil and fuel extractions from storage areas should be supervised and routine inspections and maintenance be carried.
Water quality degradation	• Material with the following elements to be avoided at all cost. • Asbestos in any form or any man made mineral fibre. • Lead paint or any other materials containing lead which may be inhaled,ingested or absorbed shall not be used. • Any timber treated with pentachlorophenol. • Any other substances regarded as being deleterious, construction materials which are not in accordance with requirements, codes of practice or with current accepted building Practice at the time of specification orconstruction. • The prevention of downstream contamination from pollutants resulting from construction and operation and maintenance activities can be achieved by proper storage and ensuring all storage containers are well closed to prevent accidental leaks and spills; and • Proper management of oil spill and diligence on the part of the contractor during construction, refurbishment, fixing, installation and drilling shall reduce the risk of water contamination.
Air quality	• Personal protective equipment (PPE) such as dust masks must be worn in the immediate vicinity of the operations during quarrying and handling of cement.Additional protective masks should be worn at the vicinity. • The stockpiles of earth generated during construction works should be suppressed by spraying water or water based mixtures. Spraying should also becarried out on unpaved road accesses regularly and at handling sites forcement. • All machinery and equipment should be maintained in good working order toensure minimum emissions including carbon monoxide, oxides of Nitrogenand Sulphur, as well as suspended particulate matter. • Drivers of construction vehicles and delivery trucks should be cautioned todrive slowly near the site to avoid creating dusty conditions. • Construction trucks removing soils from the site , delivering sand andcementto the site should be covered to minimize dust blowing into the surroundingneighborhood. • No burning of any materials whatsoever should be permitted at the site; and • Drivers of construction vehicles and delivery trucks must be supervised so that they do not leave vehicles idling and limit their speeds so that dust levels are lowered.
Risk of leaks and spills	• Regular maintenance of site equipment and machinery should be carried out to ensure any leakages are detected and controlled. The motor vehicles – should be serviced according to manufacturer's requirements to limit the exhaust emissions.

- Investigate the possibility of fitting catalytic converters especially for the heavy equipment to convert harmful substance in the exhaust fumes to less harmful substances.
- Safety procedures for fuel storage and re-fueling should be well understood and implemented by site staff; and
- Oil residuals including waste oil, lubricants, used filters, should be carefully collected and stored for safe disposal, in order to prevent migration of contaminant hydrocarbons into storm water or groundwater resources.

Occupational health and safety issues

- Ensure all equipment is inspected before use for appropriate safe guards and that the machine operators are trained on machine safety.
- Ensure the working hours are controlled and that employees are not allowed to extend the working hours beyond an acceptable limit for purposes of gaining extra pay.
- Ensure the blasting and other high risk activities are carried out under access restriction. Only authorized persons are to access the blasting areas. Train first aid personnel and provide a fully stocked first aid box to respond to any injuries due to the activities.
- Ensure appropriate road safety signage is placed and drivers adhere to the requirements of such signage.
- Erection of bumps where human and vehicular traffic have high interaction opportunities.
- Provide adequate manual labor to suffice the tasks; and
- Eliminate repetitive task by semi-automation where possible.

Noise and vibration

- Conduct noise measuring to determine levels and extent of harmful noise and provide PPE (hearing protection) to persons who must operate within or visit the identified high noise areas.
- Create a barrier well beyond the perimeter of the high noise level area to protect the unsuspecting public who may approach the project site.
- Ensure that the works are distant from the settlement areas, and vibration is not expected to have impacts beyond its site boundaries.
- In order to meet noise level requirements, the workers will be equipped with standard noise attenuation features. Machines that exceed acceptable noise limits will be equipped with silencers or lagging materials or specially designed acoustic enclosures; and
- Inform local residents of any abnormal noise generating construction activities to minimize disruption to local residents.

Impacts during Construction phase

Waste generation

Non-hazardous waste.

- Incorporate identification of a proper location for a waste yard where non degradable wastes from the settlement area can be handled in environmentally sensitive manner. This should go along way with identification of strategic locations and construction of transfer stations for the solid wastes collection.
- Install waste collection bins at strategic locations along the roads/major foot paths where the locals can throw the wastes.
- Promote regular campaigns and sensitization of the community on proper solid waste management aimed at discouraging throwing of wastes at the roads/paths, and haphazard throwing at the compounds and at community water points.
- Sensitize the households on the need to segregate wastes generated from the households.
- Promote digging of waste pits at strategic locations to dispose-off food wastes/biodegradable wastes. This may involve provision of incentives to motivate the households provide labour to dig the pits.

Hazardous wastes

- Ensure availability of centralized collection containers for used torch batteriessuch that when the containers are full, the batteries will be taken for disposalby a NEMA licensed waste contractor.
- Ensure availability of incinerators for disposal of medical waste.
- As for the proposed agricultural activities, promote use of organic manure.Should the land require chemical fertilizers, then potential users will first besensitized on the appropriate use of fertilizers under the guidance of theSettlement Extension personnel.
- Establish an e-waste policy that would identify all sources of e-waste andestablish special handling and disposal procedures.

Increased demand for fuel and energy

- Promote energy efficiency by all users (domestic, institutional, business,agency) by among other things, introducing these incentives to high fuelwoodconsumption (e.g. wood supply away from refugee camps)Promote energy saving techniques tailored to their specific needs, e.g.Fuel efficient stoves along with environmental education and/or training programmes, to be used at the domestic level,Bio-gas plants and solar cookers/water heaters, for institutions and agencyoffices.
- Photovoltaic power or wind generators for small businesses, etc.
- Implement a fuel wood supply programme which provides fuel wood cut in a sustainable manner, and includes controls over unauthorized harvesting offuelwood as well as economic and educational programmes designed to reduce fuel wood consumption.

Increased demand for water supply

- Ensure that sufficient data is obtained for each of the borehole water yield toavoid over abstraction.
- To ensure that no borehole is drilled through unconfined aquifers and toestimate their sustainable pumping capacity, an adequate hydro geological survey will in the longer term be conducted.

- Monitor condition of aquifer. This should involve designating some of theboreholes for ground water monitoring purposes only. This should be installedwith data loggers to improve the accuracy and consistency of monitoringaquifer static water levels, abstraction rates and water quality.
- Identify points of ground water re-charge targeting utilization of great run-offthat is usually experienced at any rain interval in the project areaProvide water storage targets at strategic locations within the camp and inselected schools to store water and ensure availability throughout.
- An appropriate management and a comprehensive monitoring system of waterquality and quantity over time will be developed.
- Raise awareness that aim at proper utilization of water at household level. Forevery water point, designate a water user's management committee member toman the tap stand in a way that would ensure equal access to everyone to avoid any conflicts.
- Provide for well-constructed livestock watering points for the host community.For each of the points, ensure that a water users committee is in place to takecare of operations, maintenance and water use conflicts.

Increased demand for sanitation and hygiene facilities

- Ensure availability of adequate latrines and at settlement site to gather for the population.
- A waste management system, appropriate to the demands and local siteconditions, should be put into place, monitored, and improved as necessary.
- Implementation of a programme involving the "3-Rs" (reduce, reuse, recycle)should be a major part of a waste management plan.
- Special precautions need to be taken with all hazardous waste such as medicalwaste, empty pesticide containers, used/expired chemicals, etc.
- Camp design and operation should aim to minimize the production of dust;Control waste water at source and/or put into place drainage facilities or otherremedial measures to prevent accumulation of standing water around refugeehousing areas.
- Drainage systems for waste water can be used to capture and recycle thisresource for use in watering vegetable gardens, trees, etc.
- Insect and rodent control measures should be implemented, taking into accountthe toxicity of many pesticides and insecticides.
- Promote campaigns on hand washing at critical times in order to improve thewellbeing of children and by the caregivers. This should go along way withinstallation of posters with hygiene messages at the strategic locations in the camp.
- Sensitize the host community on importance of using latrines at thehouseholds. his should go along way with proper disposal of domestic wastesas hygiene promotion measures at household levels.

Fragile ecosystems

- The management will ensure that all sensitive ecosystems within theSettlement are identified and protected from encroachment by delineating the50 meter buffer zone around them.
- Bush burning will be prohibited in line with the Laws in Kenya against bushburning.While prescribed bush burning may take place within the settlement,there will be strict measures to ensure that there is no abuse of suchpermissions.

Deforestation

- Designate specific zones within the project area which are to be maintained forforestation. In addition encourage settlers to plant trees along the edges of theirland and some other specified areas will continue (e.g. around schools).Withinthe agricultural plots, it is necessary to plant trees focusing on local species.
- Sensitization will be conducted among the settlers to ensure that invasivespecies of trees are not introduced in the area.

Agriculture and soil conservation

- No Agricultural Activities will be permitted in open and along the seasonal riverines.
- To avoid diminution of tree vegetation cover, protected trees/ecosystems willbe clearly identified and agro-forestry practices will be intensively promoted.
- Tree planting using local species and/or fast growing species (local or exotic)which can maintain or increase crop production (conservation of soil fertility)and bring additional resources like wood for construction or firewoodconsumption will be promoted.
- The settlement management will promote organic farming practices byencouraging composting and avoiding the use of chemicals and pesticides.
- To conserve land, free ranging livestock will be discouraged, and insteadsmaller livestock such as goats, pigs and poultry will be encouraged within theboundaries of the Settlement.
